

Will the Real So and So, Please Stand Up!

Regarding my name changes, I will clear any confusion for the previously puzzled and/or currently curious!

I was born Martha Anne Musgrave. Through marriage and divorce, my last name was Neidig for a time. I have also personally chosen "sacred" names of Cassandra and St. Claire. My names have reflected significant passages and transitions in my life, a life that has felt like many lifetimes in one.

While my family has always called me Martha, I have been known as Cassandra Musgrave for much of my latter professional career and that is the name that has been most associated with my private practice, near-death experience work, the media, and so forth.

In recent years, I have chosen once again to use my first name of Martha, along with St. Claire, which are names that continue to resonate with my soul's path.
